

In the name of God, the Most Gracious, the Most Merciful;
And prayers and peace be upon Prophet Mohamed

Dear Readers,

Welcome to the summer issue of the peer-reviewed scientific Journal of the Faculty of Arts, Alexandria University. Initially, I wish to express my most sincere thanks to, and appreciation of, the members of the board of directors for their efforts to constantly develop the journal. A very special thank you is reserved for the chairman of the board Prof. Dr. Hani Khamis Abdo for his continuous, and unwavering, support of this academic project. I am also pleased to welcome the Vice-Dean for Graduate Studies, Prof. Dr. Jihan Mahmoud Al-Sayed as Vice-Chairman of our Board of Directors.

One of our recent developments, which illustrates the journal's interest in continuously developing and upgrading its content and outreach is the translation of titles, reviews, reports of seminars and conferences, as well as its editorial into Chinese. This step was taken to make the content available on an international level.

Here, I would like to express my gratitude to Prof. Dr. Hossam Ahmed Al-Abaddi, Head of the Chinese Language Department, for suggesting this valuable addition to our journal, and also wish to thank his team for carrying out the translation and making it available to the editorial team.

All due appreciation and respect go to the esteemed researchers who submitted their papers for publication in this issue. To them, and to our readers, I am pleased to announce that in this issue we are providing a summary of a symposium of December 18, 2021 held under the auspices of the "Scientific Research Support Center" affiliated with Helwan University. The symposium "Research Data Management: Guidelines and Practices" is meant to aid researchers in the management and organization of their data; be it collected research data, observed or created data, or data they used as primary sources of research, which is necessary to validate the results of their research in the scientific community. The summary included in this issue also provides the website: re3data.org "Registry of research data repositories", which contains a guide to research data repositories for saving and sharing data in various disciplines. The website also includes the available research data repositories in the world.

With regard to the content of this issue (109) of May 2022, I am happy to say that it includes a number of original and creative papers and studies in the diverse areas of humanities and social and linguistic sciences. These studies and research papers fall under the following two categories:

First: The Humanities and Social Sciences:

- Psychology is represented in a paper by Prof. Dr. Hana Ahmed Muhammad Shweikh and Ms. Dr. Amthal Hadi Al-Huwailah, entitled: "Executive Functions of Those Recovered from Covid-19 Virus and Healthy People: A Comparative Study between a Sample of Egyptians and Kuwaitis".
- We also have a paper in Sociology by Dr. Nevin Zakaria Mohamed Amin titled: "Social Cohesion in Unsafe Areas and Spatial Stigma: A Case Study of Forest and Wireless Shelters in Ain El-Sira."

Second: Linguistic Sciences and Literature:

This section includes three papers:

- In Arabic, there is a research paper by Prof. Dr. Magdy Mohamed Hassan, entitled: "The Qur'anic Word Between Stability and Transformation" and;
- A research paper in English Literature by Ms. Somaya Sami Sabry that goes by the title: "The Body\Land Dichotomy: An Eco-feminist Approach to the Early Modern Female Body and Pastoral Space in Mary Wroth's Urania" and;
- In French there is also a research by Dr. Mustafa Farouk Taha Muhammad, titled: "L'étude sémio-narrative du contemer veilleux africain: « Le Roi et ses enfants»"

A third category in this issue is: Book and Theses Reviews, and it includes the following:

1. A review of the master's thesis: "The Egyptian public's uses of television documentary materials and their gratifications", prepared by Amira Younis Mohamed Zaher - MA in Mass Communication, Faculty of Mass Communication - Cairo University.

2. A review of the modified edition of the book General Knowledge about Chinese Culture, prepared by Irene Hanna Shoukry, teacher at the Department of Chinese Language, Faculty of Arts, Fayoum University.
3. A review of the PhD thesis: “Geographical evaluation of some oil and natural gas ports in the Mediterranean basin”, prepared by Bodour Mohamed Osama Ahmed - PhD in Environmental Studies, Faculty of Arts - Alexandria University.
4. A review of the PhD thesis: “Poetry of the Catastrophes from the Sixth Century to the Eighth Hijri: An Objective Technical Study”, prepared by Basma Abdel Qader Jaber Abdel Qader, PhD in Literature and Criticism, Faculty of Arts, Alexandria University.
5. A review of the book Introduction to Information Science: A Modern Vision, prepared by Mais Al-Ghamdi , Bachelor of Information Science - Umm Al-Qura University, Saudi Arabia.

With regards to the part comprising Reports on Scientific Conferences and Symposia in the Humanities, Social and Linguistic Sciences, we have the following reports:

1. A report on the symposium "Engineering of Job Happiness and Quality of Life in the Library Environment", prepared by Hadeer Mohamed Mahmoud - Teaching Assistant, Department of Libraries and Information Science, Faculty of Arts, Alexandria University.
2. A report on the symposium "Research Data Management: Guidelines and Practices ", prepared by: Reham Mahmoud Abdullah Hassanein - Assistant Lecturer, Department of Libraries and Information Science, Alexandria University.
3. A report on the Naseej Academic Symposium, entitled: “Smart Access to Knowledge in Libraries”, prepared by Heba Azer Rafael, subject teacher, Department of Library and Information Science, Alexandria University.

As such, the present 109th issue of our journal presents a variety of valuable scientific studies and research, as well as reviews of books and theses, and reports about seminars and symposia in the various areas of the humanities and social and linguistic sciences.

I sincerely hope that this issue with its diverse resources will meet the needs of researchers and readers, and add valuable knowledge to the academic community locally, regionally and internationally.

Sincerely,

Prof. Amany Zakaria Elramady
